

The folio lines in today's Star read: Vol. 53—No. 1, for this is the newspaper's birthday... actually Sunday, but noted today since we don't publish on Sunday.

The Star was founded 52 years ago, October 14, 1899, by the late Claude McCorkle, father of Ed. McCorkle. You don't realize how the life-line of the old Star of Hope parallels the history and growth of the city itself until you get to digging into old newspapers and pictures.

We did some digging a couple of years ago when we flirted with the idea of getting out a 50th anniversary edition, an edition which because of the crisis days this generation lives in somehow never came off. Maybe we'll get around to printing this material later, on one excuse or another. Some of those pictures of 50, 60 and nearly 70 years ago are startling.

Congress apparently is going to ride down the White House censorship boys on a dictatorial act of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, and there is evidence that it may do the same on a more recent outburst of power by Harry Truman.

The Roosevelt blot was a federal law forbidding the states from making public the public welfare lists on penalty of losing their 50-percent federal welfare aid. Repeal of this censorship law has just been assured by the inclusion of a rider in the new tax bill in the House-Senate conference.

But on September 24 the Truman administration grabbed a whole page out of the Hitler-Stalin censorship book, when Mr. Truman issued an executive order authorizing departments and agencies responsible directly to the White House to deny public access to their offices and records.

The White House's censorship comprises four degrees: (1) Top Secret; (2) Secret; (3) Confidential; and (4) Restricted.

This sounds like schoolboy scribbling to grown Americans. But it could be a nasty business if not taken seriously by freedom-loving citizens. Let this go on unchallenged and first thing you know you'd wake up some morning and find half your newspaper editors in jail because they printed a report that some high Democrat was accused of taking a bribe.

However, two bills have been introduced in congress to repeal the President's censorship order, S. B. 2100 by Senator Bricker of Ohio, and H. R. 5560 by Rep. Blakewell of Missouri.

But I'll give you 10 to 1 no newspaper pays much attention to the President's order regardless what the congress does about it. We weren't raised up here in America to recognize the current political vote-getter as Mr. God, and if the foreign adventures of our government are misleading the White House occupant as to who he's responsible to, the people will straighten him out in jig-time. The only thing we're more afraid of than a foreign army is a local king.

I would point out to you that not even in wartime does America have governmental censorship, except for matters concerning and within the armed forces. Such wartime censorship as we permit is strictly voluntary. The issue of national security is checked to the newspaper, magazine, and radio, associations—and they set up in conference with the government a voluntary code of censorship.

That's our historic procedure, and if Harry Truman tries to change it the reason will be some unpleasant disclosures in his official family and party—not the common enemy abroad.

Two Autos Heavily Damaged in Wreck Here Early Today

An auto accident about 7:20 a.m. at 8th and Fulton Streets today brought heavy damage to two automobiles but nobody was injured seriously.

Cars driven by F. J. Burroughs of Hope and Bobby Joe Harvel of near Hope collided just beyond the intersection. Harvel's auto turned over twice and was heavily damaged.

The Burroughs' vehicle also sustained heavy damage. City Police investigated.

Egypt Rejects Proposal to Enter Pact

Cairo, Oct. 15 (AP) — Egypt moved rapidly today toward rejection of a Western proposal to replace British troops defending the Suez canal with an international force.

Sources close to the government said Premier Mustapha Napsi Pasha would ask parliament tonight to approve Egypt's "no" to the West's plan for joining the Nile kingdom with the United States, Britain, France and Turkey in a Middle East defense alliance against Communism.

Parliamentary approval, said these sources, "is virtually assured to be unanimous."

The parliamentary session tonight also is scheduled to ratify Egypt's junking of her treaties permitting British defense of the canal and joint Anglo-British control of the million-square-mile Sudan territory. Britain has said she will not leave either area.

Informants said the cabinet last night approved rejection of the Western proposal, which was handed to the Egyptians only Saturday. These same sources said a note outlining Egypt's stand would be given today to the ambassadors of the four would-be defense pact partners.

The government was reported as feeling that creation of the five-power Middle East command and even though it offered Egypt full membership — would be tantamount to "continuing the present British occupation under a new label."

The influential independent news paper, Al-Ahram, said the cabinet had decided not to discuss defense proposals from other nations until Egypt's demands on the Suez and the Sudan — that Britain get out — are met.

The Egyptian press today published details of the four-power proposal along with the flat statement that Egypt was rejecting them. Al-Ahram said the government felt the Western note "could not even be used as a starting point for discussion."

The pro-government daily Al-Misri said the Western plans were aimed at "strengthening the foundation of imperialism in Egypt and the Sudan."

Diplomats in London already had predicted Egypt would demand full control of the Sudan as her price for joining the international force.

Al-Misri reported earlier that Egypt was consulting with other Arab nations to decide on a common policy of opposition to the Western suggestions.

The anticipated parliamentary denunciation of the treaties with Britain was expected to launch a campaign of harassment and attack against British forces in Egypt.

British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison said last week that Britain would not get out. He said British troops would not start any trouble, but would fight if attacked.

Meteor Seen 100 Miles, Burns Out

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP) — A meteor seen as far as 100 miles at sea and reported as a brilliant streak of fire in last night's sky over at least four states apparently burned itself out.

There were several reports that parts of the meteor had struck the earth with a roar and a blinding flash.

The civil aeronautics administration traffic control center said airplane pilots had reported sighting the meteor 100 miles at sea. They said it was traveling in a westerly direction.

Police in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Kentucky investigated reports of anxious residents who saw the ball of fire.

Trooper L. S. Woodell of the Buchanan detachment of the West Virginia state police said Mr. and Mrs. Paige Quertinnont of Buchanan reported they saw a flash in the sky as they drove along the highway in the north central part of the state.

They told the trooper a part of the meteor had fallen near the foot of Gum Mountain, about 10 miles from Buchanan, in the north central part of the state.

Woodell quoted Quertinnont as saying the object was "about the size of a football" and flashed in front of their car about 75 feet in the air before striking the side of the mountain.

About 90 miles north, at Greensburg, Pa., residents swamped their police and fire departments with telephone calls about an explosion that made the ground tremble.

In most cases meteors are vaporized by the fierce heat generated as they pass through the earth's atmosphere.

Admits Trying to Discredit Diplomat

Lausanne, Switzerland, Oct. 15 (AP) — Charles E. Davis testified today that he sent a telegram to former U. S. Minister John Carter Vincent in Bern a year ago in an effort to discredit the diplomat.

Davis, 24-year-old Pasadena, Calif., Negro, went to trial today before a five-man Swiss federal criminal court charged with political espionage. The Swiss government alleges Davis was employed by an agent of Sen. John R. McCarthy (R-Wis) to gather information concerning U. S. diplomatic personnel in Switzerland.

Prosecutor Rene Dubois produced in court a telegram dated Nov. 4, 1950, and addressed to Vincent. The telegram said: "Send information on Mr. Alex Jordan" and was signed by a well-known Geneva communist. The purpose of the telegram, the prosecutor said, was "to discredit minister Vincent" and "establish the acquaintance of this diplomat with Communist circles."

Chief Justice A. Rais asked Davis: "Your intention apparently was to compromise the minister in Bern?"

"Yes, that is true," Davis answered.

A copy of the telegram, it was testified, was sent to John E. Farnand in Paris. Farnand is named in the Acte D'Accusation (indictment) as Sen. McCarthy's representative.

Vincent was transferred from Bern to Tangiers several months ago. He frequently has been attacked by McCarthy for his work as a state department Far Eastern expert during World War II. The senator charged that Vincent followed the Communist line. Vincent said he "could fight back on moral grounds," but didn't have the money to finance the fight.

Perhaps no other entertainment medium in history ever touched its timbre more quickly or deeply, for both good and bad. Its critics said, for years the movies were ruining the morals of the nation by holding out a false and shallow sense of values. However, in 35 years of movie-going, I personally have never met anyone whose life had been wrecked by a bad movie.

The worst effect I have ever seen in a film produce is an occasional lack of indignation.

The movies have survived and thrived because, by and large, they gave more people more fun for less money than anything the human race had stumbled on before.

Sometimes I feel sorry for the kids today who know the movies only as a fairly full-blown art. Most middle-aged people had a lot of pleasure growing up with the industry.

They still get a chuckle recalling the old days of the silent film, when William S. Hart flickered across the screen in a mad gallop to hear the rustlers off at Eagle Gulch, as the lady piano player down front chewed her gum frantically and pounded wildly on her out-of-time keys.

Who was William S. Hart, a youngster asks? Why, pardner, he was just the greatest western star that ever was. He could take Hopalong Cassidy in one hand and Roy Rogers in the other and — Well, there was nothing old Bill Hart couldn't do. The deadliest man who ever fanned a gun, he was.

Remember the old colored slide they used to flash on at the start of the program? It showed a big fat woman wearing a topknot like a tent, and it said:

"Will the ladies kindly remove their hats?"

Half American was crazy in love with Mary Pickard, and even the other half — the women — had to admit there was nobody ever prettier, and Charlie Chaplin, the gay, frosted, sad-faced little tramp — he was just the funniest thing ever.

He still is, except that now they've decided he's a great artist, too. The money flowed in a golden tide. It made millions out of a few burns, and some went on acting like bums. Hollywood became a world symbol for screwball living, where anybody making less than $5,000 a week was a pauper, but for all the tirades against it, Hollywood did something tremendous. It made pictures that took life-starved people out of their monotonous life to a world of wonder and make-believe. And that is why the industry grew — it gave something back for the money it took in at the boxoffice.

The intellectuals rant against Hollywood because it doesn't make more "good pictures." But Hollywood is the rarest commodity on this earth. There are only a few hundred movies produced each year, but there are about 10,000 new books printed. If you find 15 pictures a year that lighten your heart, or make you think, isn't that enough? Can you find 15 new books a year that will do it?

Despite radio and television, the film industry can look forward to at least another 50 golden years, no matter what they throw on the screen.

The reason: A movie house is still the best place for the young folks to go to get away from the old folks — and hold hands in the dark.

Couple Awaits Word From Baby Stolen From Crib

Michigan City, Ind., Oct. 15 (AP) — A bewildered father and a pain-wracked mother clung today to the hope that their plea to "take good care of our baby and bring him back" would be heeded.

James Lyons, 37-year-old service station operator, and his wife, Frances, waited in hope and fear as police searched garbage cans and sewers and questioned countless persons.

The baby was Lawrence James Lyons, first child of 37-year-old Mrs. Lyons, born last Tuesday by cesarean section. He disappeared from his crib at St. Anthony's hospital Saturday night.

Police said they are virtually without clues.

They discounted the possibility that the Lyons baby was taken by someone who just wanted a baby and baby. The boy was in a row of cribs with others on both sides in the nursery.

Police said a nurses' aid, Marlene Lubs, told them someone asked her "which baby was the Lyons baby." That was less than two hours before another nurses' aid noticed the empty crib.

"I looked like whoever did this wanted that baby home," Police Chief Arthur Menke said.

Miss Lubs couldn't give any clues to the identity of the inquirer.

"I didn't even look around," she said. "I was so busy. I just pointed to the baby. I don't even remember if it was a man or woman."

Kidnaping for ransom seemed unlikely, Lyons said. He has no money and no enemies.

Choking up so that he could hardly talk Lyons went on radio station WIMS to describe the baby's formula and plead, "I'd like to say please take good care of our baby."

"Don't harry him, and return him to the hospital, police station or to our home at 616 Wabash," Lyons begged.

"His formula is six parts of evaporated milk, twelve parts of water and one tablespoon of Carso. He takes this should be changed to seven parts of evaporated milk, 14 parts water and two tablespoons Carso."

"I just brought my wife home from the hospital. She said she felt like she was going home from a funeral. What was to have been our happiest day, when we took the baby home, has turned out to be our saddest."

Mrs. Lyons would have been kept in the hospital several days longer because of her operation, but doctors sent her home yesterday. The other mothers in her ward had their babies brought to them regularly, and she just couldn't stand it.

Lyons has one other child, Dorothy, 19, by a previous marriage.

Oil Progress Week Locally Observed

Service station operators play a key role in the community life of Hope, the Hope Chamber of Commerce declared today in a statement observing Oil Progress Week.

Acknowledging their public service to the community, the Chamber said that our service station dealers serve as our unofficial public representatives to the country at large.

"Our service station dealer, the statement said, are more than corner merchants providing a customary service. They are, in a real sense, unofficial ambassadors of good will for the community.

A service station dealer is very often the first local man, night out-of-town visitors meet, and he's the only one many people passing through town ever see. He is the person by whom these people form their first judgments of our town, and thanks to him, these impressions are usually good.

"Out-of-town visitors look to a service station dealer for information on local stores, hotels, amusements and services. His recommendations send a steady stream of customers to our local businesses.

By his hard work, his integrity and above all, the cheerful way he constantly renders service, he has won the respect of all who know him, and the confidence of those who meet him for the first time.

"Service station dealers provide a vital service to our community. The importance of their job is emphasized by the fact that next to food, clothing and shelter, transportation ranks at the top of the daily requirements of the average American family. They deserve full credit for the vital role they play in our life."

Service station operators are being honored by the oil industry during the celebration of Oil Progress Week, October 14 - 21. Special advertisements and posters will call attention to their important function in serving the nation. Other special events are planned as part of the nationwide ceremonies.

R. L. Richards Succumbs at Age of 75

Robert Lee Richards, aged 75, a resident of Hope for many years, died in a local hospital late Saturday.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mae Richards, two sons, Jack of Birmingham, Ala. and Dennis Richards of Dallas; three daughters, Mrs. Vera Rogers of DeQueen, Mrs. Goldie Dempsey of Bethel, Kan., and Lola Pickard of Hope, two sisters, Mrs. Katie Fickling of Hot Springs and Mrs. Lillie Richards of Tall, Texas.

Funeral services were held at 4 p.m. Sunday at Herndon-Cornelius Chapel by the Rev. S. A. Whitlow and Howard White. Burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery.

STRUN BY FISH — Long Beach, Calif., Oct. 15 (AP) — Lloyd Murray, 24, was attacked by a monster of the sea, and lived to tell about it.

A giant Manta Ray slung Murray while he was spear fishing in lower California. Friends opened the wound with a razor blade and sucked the poison from it. Doctors said this may have saved his life.

Murray was rushed to Tucson, Ariz., then put aboard a plane to be flown to the Veterans hospital here.

Truman Offers to Talk It Over With Russia

Winston-Salem, N. C., Oct. 15 (AP) — President Truman offered today to "sit down with Soviet Russia" to seek agreement upon disarmament and "free the world from the scourge of atomic warfare."

In his first major foreign policy speech since he announced Russia's explosion of a second atomic bomb, the President renewed a proposal for United Nations control of atomic power which this country suggested "long before the Soviet union got the atomic bomb."

He asked Russia to lay aside its "phony peace propaganda" and declared:

"We are ready now, as we have always been, to sit down with the Soviet union, and all the nations concerned, in the United Nations, and work together for lifting the burden of armaments and securing the peace."

Mr. Truman's speech was prepared for ground breaking ceremonies for the Wake Forest college campus here. The Baptist institution is being moved here from Wake Forest, N. C.

The President held out little hope of reaching any real agreement with Russia until the free world completes its armament program. But he warned against "movers of suspicion and the peddlers of fear" at home.

American policy, the President declared, "is based on the hope that it will be possible to live, without a war, in the same world with the Soviet union — if the free nations have adequate defenses."

He added: "As our strength increases, we should be able to negotiate settlements that the Soviet union will respect and live up to."

Turning again to his critics, Mr. Truman declared:

"To the sowers of suspicion, and the peddlers of fear, to all those who seem bent on persuading us that our country is on the wrong track and that there is no honor or loyalty left in the land, and that we and ruin lie ahead, I would say one thing:

"Take off your blinders, and look toward the future. The worst danger we face is the danger of fear. This danger is brought on by those who abandon faith and those who spread cynicism and distrust and try to blind us to our great chance to do good for man."

At heart, the President said, he does not greatly fear such men "for they have always been with us, and in the long run they have always failed."

Dewey Sees Election of Eisenhower

New York, Oct. 15 (AP) — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey says he is confident that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be elected the next president of the United States on the Republican ticket.

But the New York governor, a leader in the pro-Eisenhower movement, adds that he will support whoever the GOP chooses as its 1952 presidential candidate.

This includes Ohio's Sen. or Robert A. Taft, Dewey indicated yesterday in a television interview.

Dewey said his confidence in Eisenhower stemmed from the country's "need of his peculiar abilities."

"His skill and background in dealing with foreign affairs is needed very much in the White House today," Dewey added.

The governor reiterated past statements that he himself would not run again for public office. He added that he would not be a cabinet member if Eisenhower were elected.

Speaking on another television program, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass) said he believed Eisenhower could get the GOP nomination in 1952.

The senator said Eisenhower has "got to come home and work" for the nomination.

Jas. R. Hamm, Uncle of Hope Men, Dies

James R. Hamm, 63, retired lumberman, died at his home in Stamps Saturday night, and the funeral was held at First Baptist church there at 2 this (Monday) afternoon. Burial was in Lakeside cemetery at Stamps.

Mr. Hamm is survived by his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Dana William H. Hamm of Garland, and Parker of Stamps; two brothers, Carroll Hamm of Hot Springs, and among the nephews and nieces, B. R. and J. M. Hamm and Mrs. Claude Anderson, all of Hope.

Both the hamburger and the frankfurter, now considered typically American, are imports from Germany, says the National Geographic Society.

Gabrielson Won't Resign Like Boyle

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP) — William M. Boyle Jr., resigning chairman of the Democratic national committee, has entered George Washington university hospital here for a "checkup and observations."

His decision to step out a time when he and Republican Chairman Guy Gabrielson were both under fire from some congress members — led to speculation that Gabrielson might also quit. But Gabrielson said he had no intention of resigning.

Boyle gave his health as the reason when he announced Saturday that he had decided to give up his party post. Today, the Democratic national committee reported he entered Georgetown hospital late yesterday.

The committee's offices said a decision probably will be made tomorrow on a date for the committee to meet on Oct. 20 at a successor to Boyle.

Gabrielson, who like Boyle has been under attack from some quarters in Congress, was in quarrels in congress was emphatic saying he does not intend to step down.

Congressional critics, mostly Republicans, have been calling on both men to quit their party posts because of their relations with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC), big government lending agency.

Both have been under investigation by a senate subcommittee, one of whose members, Senator Faxon (R. Calif.), said last night the inquiry will continue. He added: "The disclosures of the future will make those which have come out to date seem insignificant in comparison."

Boyle had issued a statement to the senate to support his re-election contention that "I have at all times conducted myself with honor and propriety." He noted that a Republican member of the committee had said the inquiry record showed "no evidence of illegality or moral turpitude" on Boyle's part. The words were Nixon's.

Boyle's resignation came in the form of a letter to President Truman, as head of the party Mr. Truman bears the burden of selecting Boyle's successor.

Among those mentioned most prominently as possibilities were John L. Sullivan, former secretary of the navy, and Francis J. Myers, former senator from Pennsylvania who was defeated last year. Both now practice law here.

Also figuring in speculation were Senators Clements of Kentucky and Anderson of New Mexico, Secretary of the Interior Chapin and Secretary of Labor Tobin.

One advance rejection came from James A. Farley, former party head and postmaster general under President Franklin Roosevelt. "The post has not been offered to me, and I doubt if it would be," Farley said in New York. "In the event that it was offered to me," Farley said in New York. "In the event that it was offered to me, I couldn't possibly accept it under any circumstances."

Typhoon Hits U. S. Ship, 400 Soldiers Safe

Tokyo, Oct. 15 (AP) — A typhoon drove a troopship on a reef off the southwest coast of Japan but nearly 400 United Nations soldiers aboard and some of her crew were rescued today by a U. S. attack transport.

The Kongo Maru, 450-foot U. S. leased Japanese ship, was hurled on the reef in the Korean strait Saturday by advance winds of a typhoon that struck southern Japan, a damaging blow.

A navy announcement said the skipper and 42 crewmen, all Japanese, would stay aboard the vessel unless forced to abandon ship.

There was no immediate indication that the Kongo Maru would break up soon. The vessel was reported firmly wedged on the reef. She was reported taking water in every hold, however, and listing 20 degrees.

Navy sources said the Kongo Maru carried nearly 400 passengers and a crew of about 115.

Typhoon winds today injured six American soldiers at South Camp Fuji, southwest of Tokyo. The army estimated damage at the tent campment of the 58th amphibious tank and tractor battalion at "thousands of dollars."

Another tent area at Camp Xower, U. S. installation in the Yokohamas area was flattened by high winds but no military personnel was hurt.

The U. S. Navy Attack Transport Georges D. Clymer and two salvage tugs reached the battered and listing Kongo Maru.

A small boat from the Clymer reached the troopship with a line against heavy seas and removal of passengers began immediately.

Most of the troops were believed to be Americans. They were en route from Sasebo, Kyushu island, to Pusan, Korea.

Typhoon-lashed seas broke over the Kongo Maru at one time while the soldier-passengers huddled below decks.

The ship is engaged in runs between Sasebo and Pusan under lease to the U. S. maritime service.

DOROTHY DIX Undue Suspicion

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married for two years and have two children. My husband wants a divorce. He admits I'm a good cook, housekeeper and mother, but says my nagging about his work is more than he can stand. I believe he likes a girl he has met outside the city but he hasn't admitted it so far. He says he isn't interested in me any more, and wants to take our older child. I do love him very much so it would be hard to do as he wishes.

Do you think I should try to find out who the girl is? My husband is away from home quite a bit owing to his type of work.

Answer: You sure hit the jackpot, Helen, when it comes to developing the very faults that take the straight line to marital break-up. No marriage could stand up under the onslaught of a wife who was not only a nagger but a first-class detective in detecting things that never happened. Your husband must be guileless of an interest in someone else; otherwise he'd take delight in confirming your suspicions.

Mend Your Ways

Whether you have tried him too far to salvage anything from the wreck, I cannot tell, I do urge you to make every effort to amend your ways and make an honest attempt to reorganize your life and your marriage. Yours is not the only husband who must travel for a living. A man on the road is much more interested in getting back to his family than he is in falling for other women. It isn't difficult to replace jealousy with faith, and the reward is a happy home. Stop trying your husband's patience with this endless questioning about the girls he meets at work. Face your position in the situation squarely. It won't be flattering, I assure you, but it might wake you up to the despicable traits you are exhibiting and the necessity for a quick and complete turnaround.

Dear Miss Dix: A number of years ago I met and dated a young man. After all these years, I find that he is unmarried and working in a neighboring city. I frequently drive through this city. Would there be anything wrong in my trying to see him?

Answer: There would certainly be nothing wrong in contacting an old friend, but arranging the meeting with finesse may prove difficult. If his birthday, or some other personal celebration happens to be in the convenient future, you might telephone to congratulate him. An informal note conveying the information that you are often in his neighborhood and would like to see him might also do the trick. In any case, don't expect too much of the meeting. Folks change with the years you know, and you might be disappointed in your erstwhile beau.

Dear Miss Dix: My husband, to whom I have been married a year, is very quick tempered. When he is in a good humor he is very good but when he is angry he beats me. I'm about fed up.

Answer: You should be fed up! Any woman who permits a man to beat her belongs back in the dark ages where such things were a matter of course. Your husband is not just "quick tempered." He's a selfish, spoiled, brutal man who should himself be given a good beating. When he gives one of these exhibitions of childish temperament, walk out of the house for a few hours. Let him cool off. He'll soon come to his senses and when he finds himself without an audience the temper display will pass.

French Parties Support Plevin

Paris, Oct. 15 (AP) — Local elections ending yesterday gave parties supporting Premier Rene Plevin's pro-American foreign policy a smashing endorsement.

Parties of Plevin's middle-of-the-road coalition and those supporting his foreign policy in the national assembly won 1,280-75 per cent of the 1,680 seats at stake.

Within the coalition, the right-of-center independent, Republican-Peasants' Alliance emerged as the most potent party, capturing 468 seats on departmental (county) councils. This represented a gain of 142 for the Rightists, at the expense of the Socialists and Communists.

The communists, who campaigned on an anti-American, anti-Atlantic pact platform, won only 76 seats — 88 fewer than they held previously. The right-wing De Gaulists, who also attacked the U. S., won 150 seats for a gain of 80.

The elections, held on two successive Sundays, were for more than half of the members of the departmental (county) councils. As America, they framed local budgets and levy local taxes. Local issues and personalities generally are at stake.

typhoon killed 42 Japanese. Kyodo News agency said 68 were killed, 83 injured and 34 missing, and more than 34,600 houses were inundated.

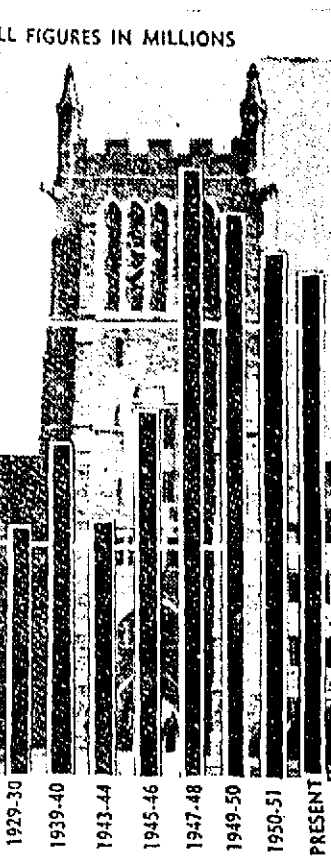

Many Japanese fishing boats were lost.

The storm split in two today and the two prongs moved over southern Honshu, Japanese main island toward the Pacific ocean. Its winds had dropped from 75 to 50 miles an hour.

The heavily populated Tokyo-Yokohama district escaped serious damage. Winds in this area reached 50 miles an hour in gusts.

TO RETIRE—Lt. Gen. George E. Stratenever, above, former commander of the Far East Air Forces, will return to the United States soon to retire. Stratenever, 60, who suffered a heart attack last May, will recuperate at Winter Park, Fla. He has been in service 36 years.

COLLEGE ROLLS DOWN—The Newchart above shows gradual drop of enrollment in American colleges and universities as the new academic year opened. During 1947-48 enrollment reached its peak with 2,616,262 students, dropping to an estimated 2,250,000 for the 1951-52 session. Educators say the decline is caused by the draft, gradual elimination of the G. I. Bill of Rights, and financial worries on the part of many eligible collegiate freshmen.

Hurricane Hovers Off of Cuba

Miami, Fla., Oct. 15 (AP) — A small but "extremely dangerous" hurricane hovered off the southern coast of Florida today, with warning flags fluttered along the lower southern coast of Florida.

From Miami, site of the American Legion's 33rd national convention opening today, southward through the eyes to the western Bahamas an alert has been posted. Hurricane precautions were ordered in western Cuba especially in Havana, Matanzas and Santa Clara provinces.

At 5 a. m. (EST) today the weather bureau reported the storm was centered about 120 miles south southwest of Havana and 320 miles south southwest of Miami. The hurricane, with strongest winds near the center of about 80 miles per hour and with gales extending outward 40 to 50 miles, continues to move northward at about five miles per hour.

The national observatory in Havana said the hurricane "appears to be headed for Cuba," and that Matanzas province, which borders Havana province on the east, probably would be hardest hit.

The storm is "extremely dangerous," the observatory added, because it may grow in force before crossing Cuba.

The Keys, where storm warnings were ordered up last night, is a chain of coral islands extending southwestward 120 miles from extreme south Florida to Key West. The latter city lies 90 miles north of Havana.

Grady Norton, the weather bureau's chief storm forecaster at Miami, earned all interests in extreme southern Florida, the Florida straits and the western Bahamas to take preliminary precautions and stand by on the alert.

Miami was crowded with some 30,000 Legionnaires, who opened their 33rd national convention today. There was some speculation that the mammoth Legion parade, scheduled for Tuesday at 4 p. m. (EST), might be postponed if the hurricane approaches.

Miami had cloudy, humid weather with a forecast for increasing clouds, but the communists and De Gaulists injected international affairs this year.

State Farmers Would Change Setup

Little Rock, Oct. 15 (AP) — Arkansas' agriculture mobilization committee have recommended several changes in the U. S. department of agriculture set up.

This was the report Saturday from J. L. Wright, state chairman of the production and marketing administration and chairman of the Arkansas agriculture mobilization committee.

Wright said the recommendations came from county committees which held public meetings on the matter.

This prompted criticism from Joe Hardin of Grady, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau federation. He said that very few, if any, farmers attended the meetings. He charged that government workers and persons connected with business, education or industry took a major part in the discussions.

"The report is 'not worth the paper it is written on,' added Hardin.

Recommendations included suggestions that:

The department's office of information study possibility of decentralization to improve service to field agencies;

That the soil conservation service be expanded to aid orga-

Strong Armed Latins Are Fading Away

By NORMAN CARIGNA (For James Marlow)

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP) — Latin America's so-called dictators, who clamped their enemies in jail, slammed the doors of congress and ruled the country with an iron hand and a decree are rapidly fading away.

The current generation of "strong men" — they abhor the word "dictator" — run a streamlined operation, rule the country with a gloved hand and operate through the machinery of a democracy with all the legal trappings.

This takes a touch more astuteness, one who relies on wit as well as strength.

Current examples deny with a great deal of heat they are dictators. They point to the fact they have been elected by the people, have a constitution, congress, regular court system and other institutions which are normally associated with a democracy.

But there isn't much doubt among the constituents that "El presidente" is the boss and it is rare indeed that congress turns down a presidential proposal or quibbles over a presidential appointment. The opposition senses how far it can go.

This development came about primarily to stem attacks of "dislators" from home and abroad. The word itself has come to have a very unsavory meaning in Latin America because of the extreme ruthlessness of some past dictators.

Enemies of President Juan Peron of Argentina have frequently attacked him from abroad as being a dictator. But Peron just as quickly has come back with the answer: Argentina is a democracy. That he was elected president and the country has a constitution, a congress and a system of courts.

The Argentine senate is made up entirely of Peronista party members and only a small number of Radical party opponents are in the chamber of deputies.

The congress has passed a stiff law levying heavy punishment on anyone showing "disrespect" for the president or members of his government. Peron is now running for re-election.

In Nicaragua Gen. Anastasio Somoza has ruled as president or war minister, but always as the "strong man," during the past 19 years.

Last year Somoza got caught in a three-way election fight which clouded his prospects for victory. Somoza reached an understanding with his most relentless political enemy, Gen. Enilio Chamorro.

The understanding was that Somoza's Liberal party and Chamorro's Conservative party would share representation in congress on a two to one ratio. Presumably this also extended to patronage.

The election results showed that for every two Liberals elected to congress one was also elected by the Conservatives. Somoza was sworn in as president on May 1 of this year was a new six-year term.

Peru's President Gen. Manuel Odría, who first came to power in 1948 by revolution, was named president in July, 1950 in a single ticket election. The candidacy of his opponent, Gen. Ernesto Monaghan, was not recognized by the national electoral board. The board charged many of the signatures on his petition were fraudulent.

The Dominican Republic's President Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo has won handily in several elections during the 20 years he has been in power.

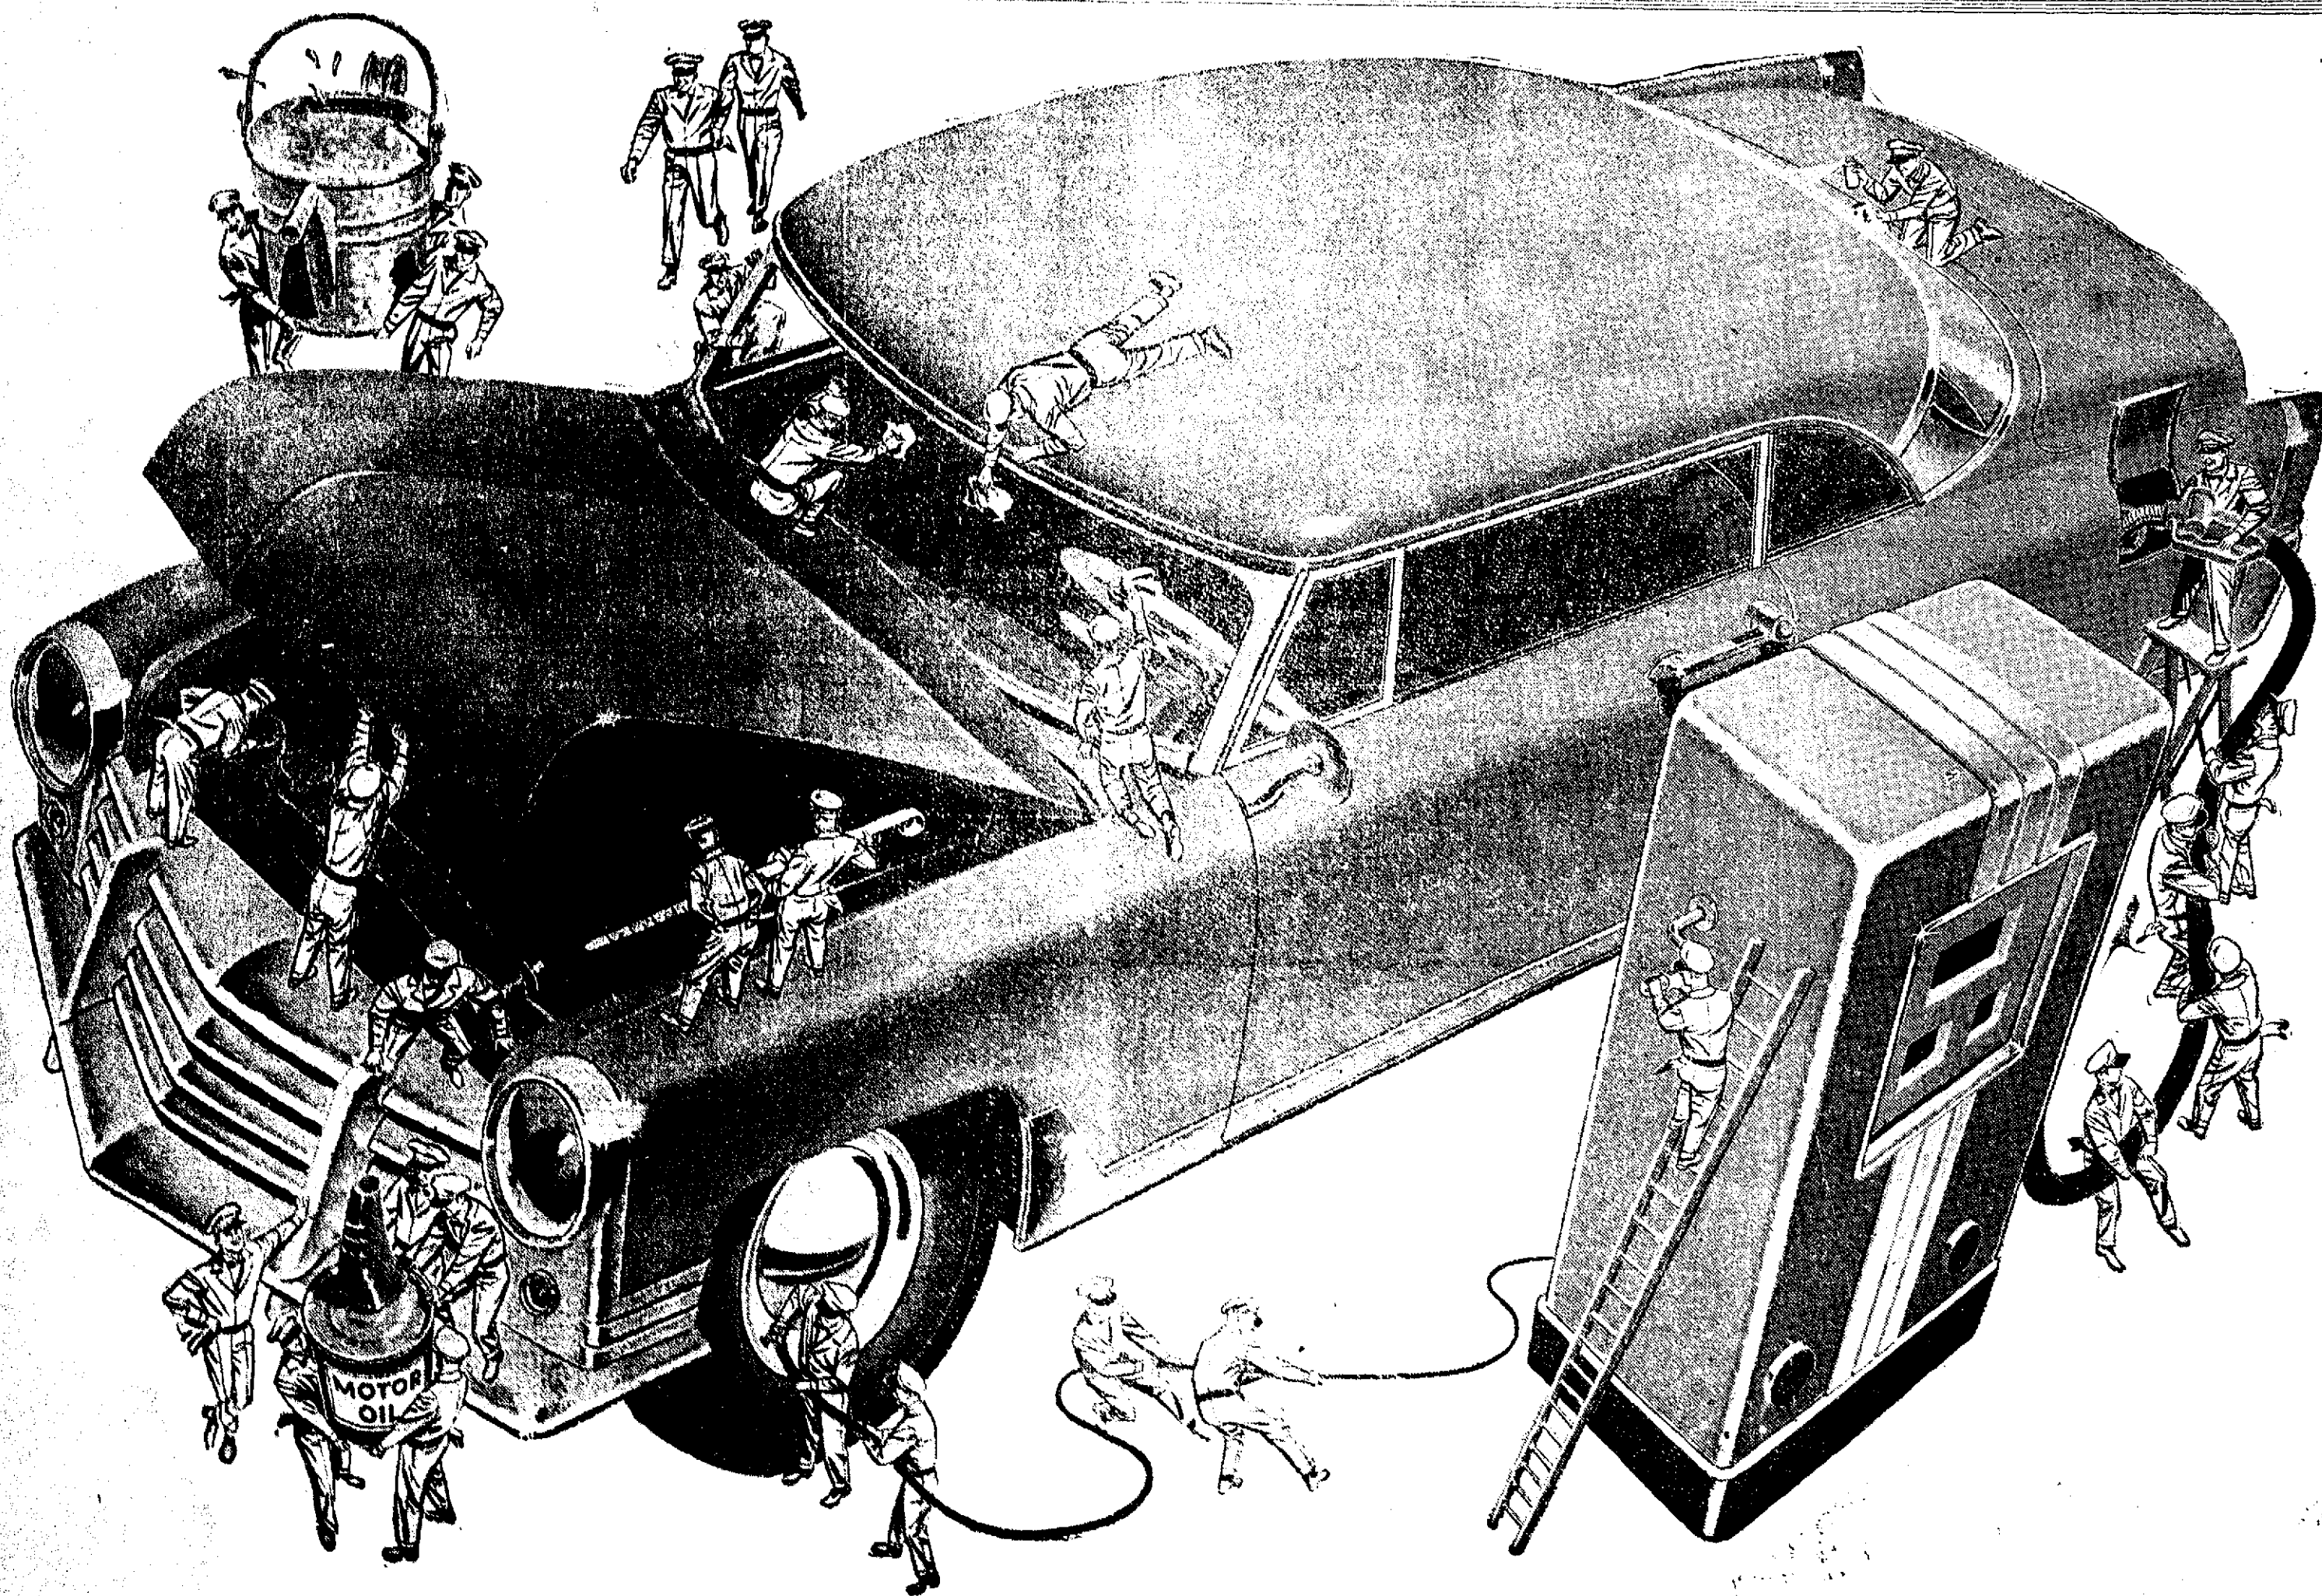

In the general elections next year Trujillo is backing his brother, Hector, for president. Hector is now minister of war.

Interviews with 500,000 U.S. soldiers form the basis of the Army's new volume on social psychology in wartime, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.
